Read Book Consensus And Global Environmental Governance Deliberative Democracy In Natures politics and policies have been developing rapidly. Global Environmental Governance: A Reform Agenda Specifically, while early phases of environmental governance have been founded on principles of consensus-based, universalist decision-making, equal sovereign state representation, and (sometimes) civil society inclusion and pluralistic global governance (Rosenau, 1995), developments in the realm of climate governance suggest that neoliberal governance involves intensified minilateralism and bilateralism between states, often outside of the constraints of the regime (Ciplet et al., 2015). Climate change and the transition to neoliberal ... The International Institute for Sustainable Development proposes

Read Book Consensus And Global Environmental Governance Deliberative Democracy In Natures a "reform agenda" for global environmental governance. The main argument is that there seems to exist an unspoken but powerful consensus on the essential objectives of a system of global environmental governance. These goals would require top-quality leadership, a strong environmental policy based on knowledge, effective cohesion and coordination, good management of the institutions constituting the environmental governance ...
